

I believe it is important that both Sirius Satellite Radio and XM Satellite Radio are permitted to provide local weather and traffic as an important service to their customers. This allows for competition with the huge broadcasting companies and should ultimately ensure a higher level of service for consumers. The current level of local programming services provided by broadcasters in the Atlanta market is unacceptable. Hopefully satellite radio will cause Viacom and Clear Channel to wake up and start listening to their customers.

James Gewert